ANGRY BULL ATTACKS GIRL NEAR MILESBURG

Little Lillian Eisenhauer Victim of Animal's Cruel Horns.

HER BODY BADLY TORN

Was Attacked in Field by Infuriated Beast—Knocked Down, Gored and Tramped Before Help Could Arrive—Removed to Hospital.

Attacked yesterday by an infuriated bull, 14-year-old Lillian Eisenhauer was knocked down, gored and tramped and seriously injured near her home, about a mile and a half below Milesburg. The prompt arrival of persons who were attracted by the child's screams saved her life. Her abdomen was badly torn by the bull's horns and her body terribly bruised by the animal's feet as she lay helpless on the gronnd. Dr. S. M. Huff, of Milesburg, was summoned and he removed the child to the Bellefonte Hospital. There an operation was performed later in the day by Dr. R. G. H. Hayes, who expressed the belief that while she was in a critical condition the injured girl probably would recover.

The child is a daughter of John Eisenhauer, who resides on what is known as the Noll farm, below Milesburg. It seems that during the morning she was walking through the field when the bull suddenly turned upon her. Seizing a stick the child endeavored to defend herself, but the bull rushed upon her and knocked her down. The next instant the animal had plunged its horns into the little girl's abdomen, tearing her body open. While the child lay screaming the bull trampled her, sinking its feet again and again into her body.

Despite her terrible injuries the child remained conscious. At the hospital it was found that an operation was necessary, owing to the nature of some of her injuries. She submitted bravely and at the conclusion of the operation the physicians said that unless complications should develop she would recover.

A. S. WILLIAMS INJURED

Port Matilda Man Has Right Ankle Broken by Falling Stone.

Acquilla S. Williams, a well known resident of Port Matilda, met with a painful accident on Saturday, last. While working on the abutments of a bridge a large stone fell upon his right leg, below the knee.

The weight of the stone snapped off the bones near the ankle. Mr. Williams was removed to his home and later was taken to the Philipsburg hospital.

Cat Causes $3,000 Fire.

The dwelling house on the farm of A. C. Bowes, situated three miles north of Howard, in Liberty township, was completely destroyed by fire shortly after 9 o'clock on last Tuesday evening. The house was burned to the ground while all the furniture of the tenant, William Price, was also destroyed. The fire was caused by the explosion of an oil lamp. Mrs. Price had gone out for the evening. During her absence Mr. Price and son retired for the night, leaving an oil lamp at the head of the steps. It is thought that a cat in running up stairs knocked the lamp over. Fortunately Mr. Price heard the explosion so that he and his son were able to get out of the house without injury. The total loss of house and furniture will reach upward $3,000.

BUDINGER—MANN NUPTIALS

Brilliant Social Event at Bride's Home, at Snow Shoe.

A brilliant event was the wedding yesterday of Miss Maude Glenn Budinger and Mr. Harry Taylor Mann, at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas B. Budinger, at Snow Shoe. The ceremony was performed at 6 o'clock, at the Methodist Episcopal church, Rev. Frank Ruch officiating. The bride was given to be married by her father and wore a gown of white satin, trimmed with old lace, with a veil of tulle and real lace. She carried a shower boquet of lillies of the valley and sweet peas. She was attended by her sister, Miss Edith E. Budinger, as maid of honor, who wore a white embroidered dress, with picture hat, leghorn, trimmed with satin roses and yellow willow plumes. She carried an armlet of yellow sweet peas. The groom was attended by J. Ellis Harvey, of Orviston, as best man.

The bridesmaids wore white embroidered dresses and picture hats, two in lavendar and two in pink, and carried armlets of sweet peas. They were Misses Kathryn Eyer, of Curwensville; Marguerite Mann, of Mill Hall; Marie Reese, of Snow Shoe, and Marie Walsh of Bellefonte. Miss Patsy Budinger, of Snow Shoe, was flower girl, and Misses Elizabeth Seeds, of Altoona, and Helen Budinger, of Snow Shoe, were pillow bearers. The ushers were Harvey Mann, of Lewistown; Robert Rich, of Woolrich; Ralph Good, of Lock Haven, and J. Thomas Budinger, Jr., of Snow Shoe.

Following the ceremony at the church a wedding supper was served at the bride's home, by Achenbach, the Lock Haven caterer. The dining room was decorated with pink sweet peas, the basket decoration prevailing throughout.

Mr. and Mrs. Mann will reside at Orviston, where the former is identified with the Centre Brick & Clay Company.

Talk About Your Clover.

For several days we had noticed that John G. Dubbs, the implement dealer and weedman, was holding his head pretty high, but it was not until Saturday afternoon that we learned the cause. Contractor William Wolf is building a house for Howard Wells, at Pleasant Gap, and one day last week he found a clover stalk in the yard that measured 4 feet, 2 inches. Mr. Wolf brought the clover to "The Republican" office where anybody may examine it and see for themselves that it is all there. The clover seed was purchased from John G. Dubbs, which explains the angle of his head these days.

Hospital Notes.

Mrs. James Meyers, Bellefonte; discharged.

Mrs. Olive Kephart, Tyrone; discharged.

Mrs. Lucy McCullough, Bellefonte; discharged.

Mrs. Sarah Miller, Hublerburg; admitted for treatment.

Mrs. Sue Chandler, Bellefonte; operation.

Miss Elizabeth Jones, Dix Run; operation for appendicitis.

Three Sets of Quinces.

Have you ever heard of one quince stalk bearing three different and separate sets of fruit at one and the same time? Oscar Wetzel has just such a curiosity at his home in Bellefonte. He has a quince plant that is bearing fruit as large as ordinary walnuts. From a second set of blossoms the same plant is bearing fruit about the size of hazlenuts. A third set of blossoms recently made their appearance and in this shape the plant is a curiosity that is exciting the attention of all who have seen it.

Alleged Cruelty to Cattle.

Squire Musser on Tuesday evening held Mrs. J. Henry Oliger for court on the charge of alleged cruelty to animals. A warrant was issued by Robert Strunk, alleging that she had thrown a solution of lye on his cattle, burning through the hide and into the flesh. Mrs. Oliger said that she had thrown water on the cattle, but denied that she had used lye or any other poison.

No Paper Next Week.

In keeping with the custom of the newspapers of this place there will be no issue of "The Republican" next week. That each and every one of our valued subscribers may greatly enjoy the Fourth of July is the wish of the publisher and his faithful assistants, who are afforded this opportunity to take a well earned vacation.

The Woman's Club will hold its regular monthly meeting tomorrow (Friday) at 3:30 o'clock, at Petrikin Hall. Those desiring to join the club as charter members will do so at this meeting, after which the charter list will be closed.

PUBLIC MEETING TO DISCUSS STATE ROAD

Property Owners Object To Paying For Uniform Curbing.

HAD LIVELY DEBATE

Allegheny Street Sidewalks Need Not be Widened—Rev. Father McArdle Refuses to Share in Expense and Threatens Court Proceedings.

Much was said and little done at a public meeting of Bellefonte property owners, held on Monday night, to consider the question of grades, cost, etc., of the proposed State road through the borough. Work on the road has been under way for some time. There has been more or less dissatisfaction among property owners over some of the plans, due in part to pronounced opposition to a suggestion that they share a part of the expense and due in a large measure to a general misunderstanding as to what the plans embrace.

Monday night's meeting was held in the Assembly Hall, at the Logan Hose House, with the several members of the Street Committee of Bellefonte Council and Mr. Bosler, an engineer of the State Highway Department, present. Harry Keller presided.

The proposed State road will extend on West Linn Street to Allegheny, on Allegheny to Bishop, and on East Bishop Street to the borough line. The State road will not cover the full width of any one of these three streets. It is proposed that property owners, whose property fronts on the three streets in question, pay for paving the narrow strip on either side of the street, between the State road and the curb. It is also proposed that a uniform curb be constructed on both sides of the three streets along the entire length of the State road.

The paving of the narrow strip on either side of the State road would be a small item of expense. The cost of the curbing would be fifty cents per foot, amounting to considerable for many property owners. It was the latter item which provoked the most discussion at Monday night's meeting.

Rev. P. McArdle was perhaps the most pronounced opponent of the entire proposition, giving notice that he would not consent to the proposed plan and declaring his intention to fight it in the courts if necessary. There were numerous friendly tilts during the debate.

"We had the same kind of opposition when years ago we were considering keeping cows and pigs off the streets and some of the same men who were in favor of allowing cows and pigs on the street are tonight opposing these proposed improvements," said Dr. Joseph Brockerhoff, who was one of the strongest advocates of the plan to have property owners share in the expense of paving and curbing.

"When you had cows you were in favor of allowing them on the streets," quickly retorted Father McArdle, at whom Dr. Brockerhoff had directed his remarks.

"If carried through this plan will necessitate my tearing out sixty feet of curbing and paying for that much new curbing, but I am willing to do it, because I want to see Bellefonte have this State road and properly paved streets," was Dr. Brockerhoff's reply. "We should approach this matter in a fair, open mind. There is always opposition to improvements, but once the improvements are installed the very people who first opposed them would not go back to the old order of things."

This was about as far as the discussion went in the matter of curbing. Chairman Keller suggested that in the matter of paving the narrow strip on either side of the State road, the property owners pay two-thirds and the borough one-third. He said that under the law the borough not only had no power to aid in paying for the curbing, but on the contrary had the right to order the curbing installed and proceed to collect to cost of the same on the property owners.

By several it was suggested that there be a tax levy covering the entire borough to pay the cost of the proposed improvements, but this met with vigorous opposition.

One point on which there was more or less confusion in the minds of property owners was cleared up by the meeting. By many persons it was thought that it would be necessary to widen the sidewalks on Allegheny Street from the present curbing to the proposed new curbing, or a distance of from two to four feet. It was explained that no sidewalk need be changed to conform to the State road grade and that the space between the present and the proposed new curbing might be filled in with grass or gravel.

The meeting came to a close without any motion for formal adjournment and with no plans for another session. The matter promises to come up for discussion at the next regular meeting of Council.

Mr. Bosler announced that many of the brick on the diamond for use in paving Allegheny Street had been condemned and that the remainder of brick, now ready for shipment, were of a much better quality.

ANNUAL BASKET PICNIC OF CENTRE COUNTIANS

Held at Belmont Mansion, Philadelphia, Last Saturday.

WAS WELL ATTENDED

Several Hundred Former Residents of "Old Centre," Have Happy Reunion in Beautiful Fairmount Park—Elect Officers for Year.

The annual picnic of Centre countians residing in or nearby Philadelphia was held on Saturday, last, at Belmont Mansion, in Fairmount Park. This park is located within the city limits of Philadelphia and is one of the largest and most beautiful natural groves in the world.

Successful as have been these reunions of Centre countains now residing in the eastern section of the State, that on Saturday was one of the most largely attended and greatly enjoyed in the history of the association. All of the Philadelphia newspapers gave interesting reports of the picnic. The "North American" in its Sunday edition gave a quite lengthy report of the reunion, accompanying it with a five column illustration showing photographs of Dr. Roland G. Curtin, Mr. and Mrs. Ira D. Garman, Dr. J. C. C. Beale, Dr. S. Gray Mattern, Miss Bessie Grenninger, Miss Katharine Cox, Miss Marjorie Garman and little Agnes Russel. This is how the "North American" described the picnic:

"THE SAME OLD CROWD!

"All here again! Just like old times, by heck! This warms the cockles of a fellow's heart! Wouldn't you know it was a Centre County bunch! Greatest place in the state for pretty girls, handsome women, bouncing babies, and don't forget the governors. Centre County is a hotbed for governors."

It was the Centre County reunion and annual picnic held yesterday out at Belmont Mansion. Hale, bewhiskered old men slapped each other on the back and laughed uproariously at nothing—just for the sheer joy of meeting a fellow who knew the old swimming hole behind the red barn and who had dug angleworms in the same truck patch.

Women gathered in neighborly groups and asked for Aunt Alice, Sister Mary and each individual member of each one of the 300 families represented at the gathering.

The babe's latest cute saying and the spiciest bit of gossip were impartially discussed, while the youngsters, real Centre County youngsters chuck full of energy and as lively as crickets, made friends and got into an animated discussion on whether it was more fun to play tag or roll down hill.

D. Roland G. Curtin, cousin of the Centre county war Governor, Andrew G. Curtin and former president of the Philadelphia Medical Society, was there with his genial reminiscences and hearty handshake. Ira D. Garman, vice president of the association, made every exile welcome to the park benches and the grassy slopes overlooking the river, while a committee of best-known residents and prominent townspeople circled about and made every one feel as if Philadelphia were hundreds of miles away and Bellefonte, Philipsburg and Centre Hall were located right in the heart of Fairmount Park.

"By George, is that Captain George P. Runkle, the fellow that runs the schoolship Adams? Haven't seen him since he was a barefoot kid. Howdy, captain. Do you remember the time we caught those trout in old Si Jones' preserve.

Captain Runkle, a genuine Centre county boy, who has distinguished himself like all his companions, was the lion of the afternoon, and made an address at supper in which he described, with the sailor's terse vividness, the multi-colored scenes in foreign ports into which he has put in the last few years with his schoolship lads.

General B. F. Fisher was on hand to tell the old and thrilling story of his wartime escape from Libby Prison, and P. Gray Meek, the Democratic "Watchman" secretary of the Democratic committee, turned up in his usual happy frame of mind.

Of course, the Centre county reunion was not just a grab fest. The women saw to it that there was plenty to eat in those capacious baskets that were carried out and hidden under the cool shade of the bushes. Everything savored of the country kitchen. Pies and cake, the kind that used to taste so good when a fellow came in from a long tramp, apple butter, jam, pickles, preserves, all made after famous old recipes, treasured like family

PLATFORM ADOPTED BY KEYSTONE REPUBLICANS

Stands Squarely By Administration of President Taft.

GOV. STUART PRAISED

Republican State Convention Demands Speedy Trial of Suits to Recover Money Illegally Paid to Capital Grafters.

The full text of the platform adopted by the Republican State Convention follows: The Republicans of Pennsylvania through their chosen representatives in convention assembled, standing upon the magnificent record of a party noted for promptness of performance rather than for profusion of promise, glorying in its unparalleled success in the administration of State and National affairs and looking forward to continued achievements, make these declarations:

The hands of time need be turned back but thirteen short years to point to the termination of a Democratic national administration, which had covered a never-to-be-forgotten period of financial disaster and industrial idleness and distress. These thirteen years of Republican supremacy will stand in history as a period of prosperity, progress and growth unequaled in the history of nations.

PRESIDENT TAFT.

We heartily indorse and commend the administration of President William H. Taft, which, less than sixteen months old, is unique in its record of accomplishment. He has, in his own way, carried forward and developed the policies of William McKinley and Theodore Roosevelt, while enforcing his own and those in favor of which the party has in national platform declared. With unwearying patience and gentleness of manner, but with great firmness of purpose and unyielding determination, he will, by the time the gavel falls at the close of the present session of Congress, have succeeded in securing the enactment into law of more important recommendations than any other President has ever secured within so brief a time after his inauguration.

ADMINISTRATION ACHIEVEMENTS.

Among this legislation may be mentioned the revision of the tariff; the bill for the more complete regulation and control of railroads; the establishment of postal savings banks; the creation of a bureau of mines; the punishment of the white slave traffic; the creation a tariff board; the abolition of the immunity bath; the establishment of business methods in various government departments; legislation for the conservation of our natural resources; the creation of a Commerce Court; providing for the investigation of railway accidents and monthly reports of the same; important legislation amending and extending the laws requiring the use of safety appliances for common carriers; the passage through the House of a bill providing a complete constitution for the government of Porto Rico, in pursuance of his special message and conferring citizenship according to the promise of the party platform, and the addition of two stars to the flag.

We also call special attention to his prompt and effective intervention to prevent the arbitrary increase of railway rates; his faithful and impartial enforcement of the anti-trust laws; his enforcement of the law against illegal dealing in stocks through the instrumentality of what are commonly termed "bucket shops;" the conviction of the perpetrators of the so-called sugar frauds upon the government, and the indictment of those engaged in unlawfully cornering and artificially advancing the price of cotton and necessarily of cotton goods which enter to so large an extent into the expenses of every American family.

SENATORS AND CONGRESSMEN.

We cordially approve the activity and influence of our Senators and Representatives in Congress in assisting to accomplish the legislation above referred to and the enactment of many other beneficial laws, and rejoice that the growing custom of continuing capable men in office has resulted in greatly increasing the power and influence of our delegation in Congress.

THE TARIFF.

We believe that the tariff bill recently enacted is in accord with the Republican policy expressed in its last national platform "to preserve, without excessive duties, the market against foreign competition to which American manufacturers, farmers and producers are entitled but also to maintain the high standard of living of the wage-workers of this country, who are the most direct beneficiaries of the protective system." Since the passage of that bill the wages of employes in this country have been increased more than five hundred millions of dollars per annum. In a few instances the tariff on luxuries was increased, but on other articles the revision was downward. No increase in the price of common necessities of life can honestly be attributed to the tariff, for the duties upon them were not raised. We agree with President Taft that it is the "best tariff bill the Republican party ever passed."

GOVERNOR STUART'S ADMINISTRATION.

The administration of Governor Edwin S. Stuart, now drawing to a close, compels the complete approval of our people. He has shown himself honest, courageous and capable. He has fulfilled every promise; he has wisely and carefully scrutinized all legislation; he has insisted upon rigid economy; he has caused offenders against the commonwealth to be brought to justice; he has so performed the various and important duties of his high office as to entitle him to receive from all lovers of honest and good government the commendation "well done, good and faithful servant."

PARTY REGULARITY.

It is well established that, under our form of government, the best results are obtained through great political parties. Governor Stuart was elected by the Republican party, against a coalition of all its opponents. His record is a splendid vindication of the wisdom of party regularity and of relying upon party responsibility and party integrity for the successful administration of public affairs. Two other departments of the government are also being conducted in harmony with and upon the same plane as his.

SUITS FOR RESTITUTION OF MONEY.

The Republican Party hereby pledges itself to a vigorous and prompt prosecution to final judgment of the civil proceedings already instituted by the Attorney General of the Commonwealth and now pending in the courts to compel restitution of all moneys alleged to have been illegally paid out of the State Treasury in connection with the completion and equipment of the new Capitol building, to the end that every guilty person may be compelled to return to the State all money fraudulently obtained.

PUBLIC EDUCATION.

We stand for the continuation of the wise policy which has built up the great system of public education which inaugurated by the Republican Party has made this Commonwealth famous and pledge ourselves to the enactment of such further legislation as will simplify the laws under which the public schools are conducted and provide for the further development of free public education. We favor continued liberal and generous appropriations for that purpose.

CHARITABLE INSTITUTIONS.

We recommend continued liberal appropriations for the maintenance and care of the feeble and afflicted wards of the State and favor the extension and improvement of the institutions erected or in course of erection for their benefit, until they shall reach the highest standard of modern efficiency, and insist that public moneys set aside for this purpose shall be so safeguarded as to secure their expenditure with intelligence, economy and integrity.

THE PUBLIC HEALTH.

We call attention to the splendid warfare waged by the State Departmentsof Health against the great plague of tuberculosis and other diseases, and pledge ourselves to a continuation of the liberal policy of appropriations for the further extension of this work, in which Pennsylvania leads the Nation.

PURE FOOD AND WATER.

We favor the strict enforcement of the present salutary laws, enacted by Republican legislatures for the protection of the food and water supplies of the people, and pledge ourselves to the enactment of such further legislation as experience may show to be necessary along these lines.

ROADS AND HIGHWAYS.

We believe the Commonwealth should continue and increase its appropriations for the improvement of public roads throughout the State, and that a progressive policy should be inaugurated looking toward the construction and maintenance of a permanent system of main highways connecting all of the counties with the great centres of activity and trade. We urge liberal encouragement to the townships in improving the dirt roads in the country, used daily by so great a proportion of the people; and pledge ourselves to endeavor to find ways and means to rid the State of the toll roads, now so great a tax and burden upon the traveling public.

THE STATE FINANCES.

We invite attention to the fact that the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, despite its record of most generous appropriations to its schools, its charities, its benevolent institutions and its public works, is now, alone among the greater States, completely out of debt, and that the heavy burden of indebtedness which the Republican party found resting as a Democratic legacy upon the taxpayers of the State has been paid through our wise financial policies without the levy of a dollar of direct taxation upon the people.

THE COAL REGIONS.

Recognizing the menace to the inhabitants of the coal regions of the Commonwealth by the sinking of the surface, due to the removal of the coal, we favor an investigation of this subject, to the end that a remedy therefore may be provided.

PENSIONS.

Recognizing our deep and lasting obligation to the soldiers and sailors of our several wars, we most heartily urge our Senators and Representatives in Congress to support all pension measures necessary to secure them from want in their declining years and increasing infirmities.

ARBITRATION.

We favor legislation that will lead to the settlement of all labor disputes by arbitration, to the end that a better understanding may be brought about between employer and employe, and that strikes, with their attendant losses to all parties, may be eliminated.

WATERWAYS.

To the end that the supremacy of the State of Pennsylvania in the manufacturing of iron and steel shall be maintained, we favor the appropriation of public moneys for the building of a canal connecting the Great Lakes and the Ohio River.

We pledge the candidates this day nominated to a faithful and unswerving allegiance the to principles of the party and to the continuance of the pure, economical and wise administration of the offices to which they will be respectively elected in November, and commend them to the support of all who favor State government thus administered.

Science in Farming.

The farmers of Pennsylvania are showing their faith in agricultural education by sending several hundreds of their sons to the School of Agriculture in the Pennsylvania State College. The growth of this school in this state institution has been remarkable. The criticism made of some state agricultural schools that they train boys wholly away from the farm will not apply to Pennsylvania. One hundred and seventy of the four hundred and seventy-nine students enrolled in the School of Agriculture last year took courses that fit only for rural life, while a considerable percentage of the remaining number, who are taking the four years, college courses, expect to engage in some department of practical farming.

The Two Years' Course in Agriculture attracts young men who have not been able to prepare for a four years' course, and it fits men for practical work only and not for professional life. A booklet has been prepared for free distribution that describes the work offered in this course, and it presents some fine illustrations that are descriptive of the work in the School of Agriculture. Students are shown engaged in livestock judging, horticultural work and other practicum. An excellent picture of the students engaged in military drill is shown on the last cover page. This attractive booklet may be secured without charge by sending a postal card request addressed to School of Agriculture and Experiment Station, State College, Centre County., Pa. Every young man who wants to know the science of agriculture and its useful application, and who has not had the advantage of school preparation for a four years's course, should take advantage of this Two Years' Course in The Pennsylvania State College.

Half Million For Texas Good Roads.

Seventy-two miles of country roads, distributed throughout the entire county, are to be paved by Harris county, Tex., with shell and gravel within the next twelve months out of a recent road and bridge bond issue of $500,000, according to a schedule adopted by the county commissioner's court. In the list of the roads to be paved are a number of the most important highways in the county, one of which is the Webster Air Line road, running from Harrisburg to the county line, a distance of eighteen miles, where it will connect with a paved road to be constructed by Galveston county, thereby giving a complete paved roadway from Houston to Galveston via the causeway.

A Good Roads "Smoker."

Recently the Business Men's association of Larned, Kan., gave a good roads "smoker" which was attended by more than 300 citizens of the county. The enthusiasm developed insures a new era in the building and maintenance of good roads in this section of the short grass country. Such a meeting would have been impossible a few years ago because it was thought that the dirt roads of middle and western Kansas would never need any great amount of care. Increased population, however, has shown differently, and there are now no more enthusiastic sections of the state on the good road proposition.

Need of Dry Roadbeds.

The most important object in draining a road is to lower the level of the ground water. If this is within a few feet of the surface it will be absorbed by the material of the road by capillary attraction. The result of this would be a softening in the road immediately below the surface. When heavy traffic passes over the road in this condition it so cuts it up that the water will not flow off.

Embarrassing Question.

SAVE THE BABIES

Timely Word to Mothers on Care of Infants During Hot Weather.

ADVICE WORTH HEEDING

Health Commissioner Dixon Gives Rules to Be Observed In Nursing the Baby and For Its Proper Care In General—The Necessity of Pure, Fresh Milk.

The hot weather of this season of the year is extremely dangerous to the lives of infants and young children, not only because of the depressing effect of high atmospheric temperature in general, but more especially because of the effect of hot weather upon all perishable articles of food, among which cow's milk holds the first place.

It is therefore highly important that cow's milk to be used for infants' food should be the purest and freshest that you can afford to buy. During the hot weather ice is absolutely necessary for the preservation of milk, and all milk used for food should be cooled by ice as soon as it comes from the cow, and should be kept next the ice until ready to be used. A little money spent for ice may prevent illness and its greater expense for medicine, nursing and medical attendance. As water is often a carrier of disease it is safest to use only boiled water for drinking or the preparation of a baby's food.

The following rules will aid you in keeping your baby well during the hot weather, and are given out by the State Department of Health of Pennsylvania:

Breast feeding. Every mother should endeavor to nurse her baby. Breast milk is the natural food of a newborn baby. There is no other food that can compare with it. A breast-fed baby has a much greater chance of living than a bottle fed baby.

Immediately after birth do not give any kind of artificial food to the baby while waiting for the breast milk to come. Put the baby to the breast every four hours and give nothing else but water that has been boiled. The baby needs nothing else and will not starve. After the milk comes into the breast nurse the baby every two hours during the day and two or three times at night.

Don't nurse the baby whenever it cries. A moderate amount of crying helps to develop the lungs. Babies who are nursed irregularly or whenever they cry are likely to get indigestion and then cry the harder from pain. Nurse regularly, and the baby will soon learn to expect its nursing but at the proper intervals. Give the baby a little boiled water several times a day.

After the baby is two months old lengthen the time between feeding to two and a half or three hours, with only one or two feedings at night.

Do not wean the baby as long as he is gaining, and never do so except by advice of your doctor. Do not follow the advice of friends or neighbors about weaning. If the baby rems well, but after a time stops gaining in weight, do not think that your milk is of no value, but consult your doctor about adding one or two bottles to help you out.

Bottle feeding. If it becomes necessary to feed the baby entirely or only in part upon the bottle, remember that the greatest cleanliness is necessary in all details of the feeding. As soon as a bottle is finished it should be thoroughly washed with cold water, then cleansed with hot water and borax (one teaspoonful to a pint of water) and put aside for further cleansing before being used again. If you have only a few bottles and it becomes necessary to use the same bottle for the next feeding, boil it for a few minutes before putting fresh food into it. Never let the baby nurse from the remains of a bottle which he has not finished. Take it away from the crib, pour out the milk and cleanse at once. Stale milk curds sticking to the inside of a bottle after a few hours become poisonous and may contaminate fresh milk coming in contact with them. It is better to have as many bottles as the number of the baby's daily feedings, so that all the bottlee can be boiled together before the food is prepared in the morning.

Nipples. The simpler the nipple the safer for the baby. Do not use complicated nipples, and under no circumstances buy a bottle with a long rubber tube attached to the nipple. It cannot be kept clean and will certainly cause bowel trouble. After the bottle is finished the nipple should be removed at once, turned inside out over the finger and scrubbed with cold water and a brush kept only for this purpose. After use, always boil the brush.

The cleansed nipple should be kept in fresh borax water (one teaspoonful of borax to a pint of water) in a covered glass. Rinse the nipple in boiling water before using it.

Do not put the nipple into your own mouth to find out whether the milk is warmed enough. Let a few drops of of the milk fall on your wrist; if it feels too hot for your wrist it is too warm for the baby's mouth.

No general instructions can be given about the preparation of a milk mixture for your baby. Each baby needs a combination suited to its digestion. The mixture upon which some other baby is thriving may be too strong or too weak for your baby. Let the doctor tell you how to mix the food. If it is necessary to use cream in the mixture do not buy cream—it is likely to be stale—but get it by pouring off half a pint from the top of a quart bottle of milk, after cleansing the lip of the bottle.

During the summer the baby's food should be brought to a scald after it is prepared. It should then be poured into the clean bottle, corked with baked clean cotton wool and kept next the ice until needed. Do not heat a bottle when you go to bed and keep it in bed until nursing time, because you do not want to go to the ice box for it and heat it when the baby needs it. This is a certain way to make the baby sick.

Bowel movements. A bottle fed baby should have at least one and not more than two or three bowel movements a day. If the milk is clean to start with and has been kept cold, and all the feeding utensils clean as you have just been told, the baby's movements should be yellow in color, and not too hard to be passed easily. If the movements become greenish in color, but not more frequent than two or three times a day, give one or two teaspoonfuls of castor oil. If the color does not improve after the oil has worked off, consult your doctor. At this time he will be able to prevent the serious bowel trouble with which the baby is threatened. If the movements remain green in color and increase in number to five or six or more in the twenty-four hours, your baby is beginning to have bowel trouble or summer diarrhoea. Stop milk at once, give pure boiled water instead and call the doctor. It may not be too late.

Do not begin milk feeding again until the doctor orders it. You will not starve your baby by stopping the milk; every drop of milk that goes into its stomach after this warning simply adds to the poison already there. You will cause serious or fatal illness by keeping up milk food after the bowels become loose and the movements green in color.

Vomiting. A bottle fed baby should not vomit if its food is pure and properly adjusted to its needs. If vomitings occur it is usually a sign of approaching illness, either of one of the serious diseases of childhood, or more commonly in hot weather, of summer diarrhoea. Vomiting due to this cause may be the first sign of trouble and the bowels may not become loose until several days later. If vomiting is repeated, stop milk feeding, give boiled water, cool or of the temperature at which the milk is given, and consult your doctor at once.

Clothing. Do not put too much clothing on the baby in summer. During the hottest weather remove most of the clothes; a thin loose shirt and a diaper are sufficient during the day and on very hot nights.

Never use clothing made with tight waistbands. Petticoats and skirts should be supported by straps over the shoulders.

Bathing. Bathe the baby every day. In hot weather a quick sponging all over later in the day will give comfort and make him sleep better. Wash the baby each time the diaper is changed and dry the parts thoroughly before using powder. Wash all soiled diapers and boil them. Never use a dried wet diaper without first washing it.

Fresh air. Fresh air is as important for the baby's health as fresh food. During the summer keep the baby out of doors as much as possible. Keep the baby out of the kitchen—he must get a "sunstroke" from too much heat indoors.

Eruptions of the skin. If the baby has an eruption or breaking out of the skin, consult a doctor. Do not think that every rash is prickly heat; it may be some serious disease like scarlet fever, measles, smallpox or chicken pox.

HOWARD PLAYED WELL BUT LOST; SCORE 7-2

Bellefonte Won Opening Game of Base Ball Season.

BROWN'S THREE BAGGER

Was Longest Hit of Game—McMurtrie, for Visiting Team, Pitched Splendidly—Howard Excelled in Team Work—Couldn't Bunch Hits.

Howard's crack baseball team went down to defeat at the hands of the Bellefonte club, on Saturday, last, the score being 7-2. At that, Howard lost nothing by its defeat, having played a good game and at times putting up a much better brand of baseball than Bellefonte.

In team work Howard far outclassed the Bellefonte team. Howard's one weakness was its over anxiety to win. This resulted in errors fatal to the visiting team.

It was Bellefonte's first try-out for her new team. No better group of ball players for a test of strength could have been selected, and Howard kept the local boys on their toes from start to finish. McMurtrie, Howard's pitcher, played a fine game with the exception of occasional wildness. A feature of the game, in fact, was the wholesome regard of the Bellefonte men, while on base, for McMurtrie's swift arm. Several times McMurtrie assisted in close plays and at all times he forced the Bellefonte baserunners to respect his quick eye and accurate throwing. After the early innings few of the Bellefonte boys ventured far from bases until McMurtrie had delivered the ball to the batter. Especially in the third inning did McMurtrie acquit himself with credit. In that inning it looked as if Bellefonte was going to roll up a large score, but with men on bases MuMurtrie pulled himself together and retired the local boys without a single tally.

One of the prettiest hits of the game was a slashing three-bagger by Brown, of Howard. The visiting team hit the ball well but unfortunately for them they were unable to bunch their hits and time and again men were left on bases.

Howard demonstrated that it has a team of exceptionally good ball players and that they know the value of team work. With a little more practice and with good leadership Howard promises to have one of the snappiest teams in this section of the State before the close of the season. The score follows:

The Dowager Queen Alexandra.

Alexandra, the widow of Edward VII., is now queen dowager of England, the first dowager which Great Britain has had since the time of Queen Charlotte, widow of William IV. Her position in the kingdom can be, if such is her desire, one of the greatest social and political importance, and the influence which she will be able to wield over certain destinies of the country will be no small one.

The fact, however, that she is sixty-six years old and that her life since the death of her son, Prince Albert Victor, in 1891 has been one in which sorrow and suffering have taken a large part may lead the queen dowager to withdraw into a retirement which may be more than welcome to her. The fact that she has recently become very deaf as a result of the catarrh with which she had been burdened may also lead her to withdraw from activity of any political sort. The death of his late majesty would naturally put any social activities out of the question for some years.

Queen Alexandra is deeply religious, but in a practical way, which has led her to take the presidency of the royal national fund for nurses and to become actively interested in trained nursing work. She has always been a worker, and this trait, with her other characteristics, has ingrained her deeply into the love of the British people.

AEROPLANE RACES

Aviation Week at Atlantic City

It is not a far cry back to "Darius Green and his his flyin' machine" when aerial navigation was considered impossible.

To-day Atlantic City is preparing for a great Aviation Meet from July 2 to 11, when three of the greatest flyers of the modern world will demonstrate their mastery of the air.

Glenn H. Curtiss, the holder of the world's record for speed, will fly daily from July 4 to 11.

Walter E. Brookins, who holds the record for high flying, will give exhibitions July 7 to 11 in a Wright aeroplane.

This is the first contest between the Wright and Curtiss machines.

It is also expected that Charles K. Hamilton, the great long distance aviator, will be present and race from July 7 to 11.

There will be prize events each day, including a fifty-mile flight over a five mile circular course, and prize high flying, July 7 to 11, directly over the beach front and ocean.

The Pennsylvania Railroad is the direct route to Atlantic City, and excursion tickets are on sale from all points. Connections are made in Broad Street Station, Philadelphia, with trains over the Delaware River Bridge, all-rail route.

The Ham Fair at Paris.

A feature of Parisian life is the ham fair which is held on the Boulevard Richard Le Noir. The name of this fair is wholly misleading, for as far as I have ever seen hams are the very last thing any one ever buys there. Old brass and copper curios, quaint jewelry, rare china, lace, tapestries and books are what most people go out to seek, and a sight not to be easily forgotten is the long, wide boulevard lined with ramshackle stalls laden with every possible kind of lumber and presided over by the most rapacious of brocanteurs. Out of piles of valueless lumber Americans and English diligently seek for their pet kind of curios, and there is not an artist in Paris who cannot point to some bit of furniture in his or her studio and say with pride, "I got that for 5 francs at the ham fair." No one ever pays more than 5 francs, I notice, but, alas, every year these five franc bargains are becoming more rare, and even as housekeeping in Paris grows more and more costly so does the furnishing of one's house to keep.—London Queen.

Acquitted.

"Sir!" said the young woman, with what seemed to be indignation.

The young man looked embarrassed.

"Yes, I did kiss you," he admitted, "but I was impulsively insane."

"That means that a man would be a lunatic to kiss me?"

"Well, any man of discretion would be just crazy to kiss you."

This seemed to end the strain, and, no jury being present to muddle affairs, a satisfactory verdict was reached.

Suspicious Routine.

Good Man—Ah, my poor fellow, I feel sorry for you! Why don't you work? When I was young, for ten years I was never in bed after 5—an hour's work before breakfast, then five hours' work, then dinner, then four hours' more work, then supper, then bed, then up again at 5 the next morning—

Not Mere Talk.

"I cannot live but a week longer wiz-out you."

"Foolish talk, duke. How can you fix on a specific length of time?"

"Ze landlord fix on it, miss, not I."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Scared Into Sound Health.

Mr. B. F. Kelley Springfield, Ill., writes: "A year ago I began to be troubled with my kidneys and bladder, which grew worse until I became alarmed at my condition. I suffered also with dull heavy headaches and the action of my bladder was annoying and painful. I read of Foley Kidney Pills and after taking them a few weeks the headaches left me, the action of my bladder was again normal, and I was free of all distress." Sold by C. M. Parrish.

Fake Reformers.

Some dissatisfied Democrats and disgruntled Republicans are talking about organizing a new political party. Conferences are being scheduled at which it is proposed that candidates for Governor, Lieutenant Governor, State Treasurer and Secretary of Internal Affairs be chosen.

It was ever thus. Each party has its handful of kickers who would kick if the Angel Gabriel were to be nominated. They kick from force of habit. They are never satisfied unless they, and no others, shall rule. They won't play unless they can have everything their own way.

Some few well meaning and honest Republicans may be led astray by the high-sounding phrases of the grumblers. Every such movement catches the unwary and the small percentage who can be misled. The great mass of Republican voters in Pennsylvania, however, will not listen to the third party talk, for their faith is firmly planted in the Republican party and they know that their party is big enough, strong enough and liberal enough to settle its own affairs.

Behind this third party circus may be seen the same old crowd of self-branded reformers, the same outfit who in 1906 under the false label of reform tried to wreck the Republican party in order that they might come into control. This and this only is the inspiration of the Mack crowd in Philadelphia who are the real instigators of the third party proposition. The Mack crowd wants to own a Governor. They want to own the Republican party in Pennsylvania. They want control of the offices so that patronage may be handed out to a select few who today are and have for years past been enemies of the Republican party and all that its honored name implies.

This is the outfit that manipulated things in 1906 to try and defeat Governor Stuart, one of the finest men in the world and one of the best Governors in the history of Pennsylvania.

All honor to the man or men who try to better the condition of their fellow men. This, and nothing short of it, is reform. For they who cry reform that they may profit at the expense of their fellow men, no condemnation can be too severe. Selfishness is the keynote to the third party talk. It was the keynote to the fight waged against Governor Stuart. It is always the keynote to all that is inspired by the fake reformer.

The Republican party has nominated for Governor a man who has by sheer merit advanced himself to his present proud position. John K. Tener is a self-made man. He is young, clean, honest and a stanch Republican. He comes from that old school of men whose word is their bond and who may be trusted with the interests of others. He is not the choice of the fake reformers, for he holds honor and principle above self advancement. He is the choice of true Republicans and they will elect him in November.

Annual Basket Picnic.

Some of the real old-fashioned housewives refuseed to use baker's bread for sandwiches, and the snowy product of their own ovens was converted into something too toothsome to be recognized as the sandwich of everyday life.

They spread supper out on white tableclothes just as the sun was melting in a mellow glow behind the city sky-scrapers which loomed up in the golden distance and then they all gathered about the feast, old friends and former neighbors who have retained in exile the spirit of their home towns. One by one the most prominent rose and spoke with a touch of romance, brown by vanished years, of the greatness of Centre county, of its hallowed hills, its famous men and women, its spirit which binds fast even those that are separated.

The names of five Governors, William Bigler, William F. Packer, Andrew G. Curtin, James A. Beaver, and Daniel Hastings, were mentioned, and the sublime heroism and splendid adherance to an ideal of the sculptor, George Gray Barnard, a Centre County boy, was fittingly celebrated.

The health of the youngest representative, Agnes Louise Russel, two years old, and one of the oldest inhabitant, Charles McCafferty, was drunk in spring water, and toasts were offered to all the stay-at-homes and the wanderers who have made the county famous.

The officers of the association, who were re-elected, were: President, Dr. Roland G. Curtin; vice president, Ira D. Garman; treasurer, Dr. S. Gray Mattern; secretary, Dr. J. C. C. Beale.

Members of the committee in charge of the outing were: Thomas Foster, Max Liveright, Dr. S. G. Mattern, William A. Magee, Dr. Stewart C. Runkle, Herman A. Haupt, L. Olin Meek, Dr. J. C. C. Beale.

Among those who attended the reunion were: Mr. and Mrs. E. Miller, Mrs. M. H. Magee, Miss M. Garman, Miss Catherine Cox, Miss Ethel Cox, Harry Frank, Mr. Mrs. Augustus Hoover, Forrest N. Magee, the Rev. Robert Harkinson, H. S. Griffith, James Alexander, Mr. and Mrs. C. McCafferty, Ed. B. Rankin, John I. Rankin, J. B Stahn, Mrs. Ed. T. Gaiman, Miss M. Butts, Miss H. Butts, Mrs. Charles Gilmore, Miss A. Tome, Mrs. S. M. Buck Mrs. P. H. Fairlamb, Mrs. J. Given, Harry Brew, H. A. Clark, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Foster, Mrs. C. Lithen, Mrs. David J. Beale, Mrs. Emma Greninger, Mrs. Mary Gillmore, J. W. Clipferd, Mrs. George G Pfeifer, Mr. and Mrs. H. Schmidt.

In a letter to "The Republican", Dr. Beale, the secretary, informs us that a ladies aid association has been formed, with the following members: Mrs. S. Gray Mattern, Mrs. Mary Magee, Mrs. E. H. Cox, Mrs. Robert Harkinson, Mrs. W. W. Cox, Miss Eva Rich, Miss Mary Butts.

Directors of the Centre County Association were elected for the coming year, as follows: General B. F. Fisher, Dr. George P. Rishel, Colonel J. L. Spangler, Charles McCafferty William S. Furst, Herman Haupt, Dr. Robert Harkinson, Forrest N. Magee, Warner Underwood, Max Liveright, William A. Magee, Thomas J. Loughrey, B. Frank Schaffer, Professor W. T. Meyer, Dr. Stuart C. Runkle, L. Olin Meek, Thomas Foster, Charles Wright, Dr. W. K. Foster, Captain George P. Runkle, Harry C. Brew; E. H. Miller, John I. Rankin, W. W. Cox, W. B. Schaffer, Dr. John Becker, A. Sternberg.

PUMPKIN SUNDAES

A Little Story of a Trip to the Republican State Convention.

"Ever try a pumpkin sundae?"

It was Commissioners Clerk E. J. Williams who asked the question. He was standing on the steps of the Commonwealth Hotel, at Harrisburg, on the night before the recent Republican State convention. His question was directed to big Davy Chambers, of Clarence. County Treasurer George Fink overheard the question and remarked:

"Come on, lets see what you have discovered."

Williams led the way across Market Street and the Centre County delegation filed into a little store, which for neatness and pretty young women clerks was in a class by itself. Williams bowed right and left, showing that he was not a stranger to the place. Davy Chambers winked at Fink as Williams piloted the way to a little table, To the first young woman who happened along, Williams remarked:

"Fetch these Centre County 'rubes' a pumpkin sundae."

The clerk was gone so long that everybody realized she was securing no small sized order When she reappeared, loaded down with a tray that was groaning under its weight of good things, Williams leaned back and smiled. Davy Chambers stared, while the eyes of Fink fairly bulged as he exclaimed:

"That may be called a pumpkin sundae, but it reminds me of a square meal like they set out at Martha, Centre County, Pennsylvania, United States of America."

It was 9:30 p. m. when Williams started to eat his sundae, and just about the time he was disposing of the first bite, who should come into the place but County Chairman Harry Keller and Congressional nominee, Charles E. Patton. Just where they had gotten the tip was a mystery, but nevertheless they were on hand. This necessitated an examination to disclose just what a pumpkin consisted of. It proved to be the most remarkable concoction ever produced for the small sum of ten cents.

To begin with, the foundation of a pumpkin sundae is a half of a canteloup. This is partly filled with ice cream, nuts, pineapple, oranges cherries and pretty nearly all the other fruits to be found in a modern hothouse. It is no exaggeration to say that when brought into the store and placed upon the table a pumpkin sundae is about the size of a Bald Eagle Valley head of cabbage.

With considerable courage Williams tackled the dish before him, when suddenly the waitress loomed up with a glass of a yellow-colored liquid.

"To wash it down," she remarked as Williams, Chambers, Patton and Keller looked up in surprise.

Up to this time Treasurer Fink had maintained a non-committal attitude. Finally he spoke, but not until he had singled out the prettiest clerk in the shop.

"I don't care if it kills me." "I'm going to tackle a pumpkin sundae."

"Count me in," spoke up Davy Chambers.

"And me, too," called out Chairman Keller before the clerk had time to disappear.

"Make it one more," said Mr. Patton."

It was midnight before the sundaes were disposed of and then the Centre County delegation went out for a street car ride, for they knew that sleep and sundaes couldn't possibly blend.

"I'm so sorry," said Treasurer Fink to Mr. Patton, "I'm so sorry."

"Whats the matter, got a pain?" queried Patton. "I know a very good drug store up here a little way."

"Try a mustard plaster," sympathetically interjected Williams, who felt somewhat guilty of having caused the trouble.

"I haven't a pain," broke in Treasurer Fink; "I'm sorry Bill. Hurley isn't here so he could get one of those things, too."

Talk about a run on an establishment for a popular article! Before the Centre County delegation quit Harrisburg the proprietor of the shop was compelled to put up a big sign, which read as follows:

"No more pumpkin sundaes; everything sold out."

ALL READY FOR THE 4TH

Bellefonte Will Make Merry With Old Fashioned Celebration.

Everything points to a banner "safe and sane" 4th of July in Bellefonte. The committee in charge have everything in readiness for the big day. There will be music, lots of noise, races, baseball games, fireworks and all kinds of contests. It is perhaps needless to say that tetanus, lockjaw etc., are barred from the activities. The committee does not want to be misunderstood and have asked us to publish the following.

"The borough council, having passed an ordinance prohibiting the sale and usage of fire crackers or any kinds of fire works in the borough limits of Bellefonte, proper arrangements have been made in order that this law shall be strictly lived up to. Five special policemen will be on duty with orders to arrest any one using any kind of explosives. The committee asks the co-operation of all citizens in enforcing this very humane law."

The amusement committee have exerted themselves to make the day's program replete with novelties. At nine o'clock the band will give a concert on the diamond. This will continue until 11 a. m. The next feature of the day is the little girls' parade which will be formed at 10 a. m. The little girls will carry their dolls. The parade will extend from Bishop to Linn Street. Prizes will be given to the best turn out. At 11 o'clock a marathon race will be in charge of Dr. Weston, of the Y. M. C. A., and will extend over the principal streets of the town. The prize is $15. After the marathon race, Dr. J. Allison Platts will read the Declaration of Independence in the Diamond. At noon all the whistles and bells in the town are primed to go off. If this racket doesn't upset your "tympanic membrane," consult a doctor.

The big parade of the day starts at 1 p. m, sharp. It will consist of the drum corps, company L, N. G. P., fire companies, Pleasant Gap fantastics, Red Men in uniform, P. O. S. of A., automobiles and the boys tin-horn battalion.

The remainder of the afternoon will be devoted to baseball at Hughes Field. In the evening the band will give a concert from 9 to 11, while Johnny Sourbeck has secured one of the finest displays of fireworks ever seen here. Watch for the wonderful fire-works diplay on Half-Moon Hill, at 9 p. m.

Run Over By Wagon.

That little 10-years-old Johnny Klingisn't laid up with a pair of broken legs is almost a miracle. On Friday, last, Johnny, who is a son of Edward Klinger, was riding in Gamble, Gheen & Company's mill wagon. Instead of sitting down, he, boylike, was standing up and paying little or no attention to which way the horses were being driven. When in front of Sechler's grocery store the driver turned the horses down the road toward the Bellefonte Fuel & Supply Company. Johnny wasn't looking for such a quick turn and the sudden turn of the wagon sent him headlong into the street. He fell with his legs directly in front of the rear wheel of the wagon. The driver was unable to stop the team in time to avoid running over the boy and consequently the wagon wheel passed over both legs of the badly frightened youngster. To the surprise of bystanders, who expected to see both legs of the boy broken, he calmly picked himself up and walked over to Gettig's butcher shop, where he was kept busy for some time in telling how it had happened.

Injured His Eye.

While working at one of the Buffalo Run quarries of the American Lime and Stone Company, on Monday, June 20, Joseph Vandy, an Austrian, met with a very serious accident. Failing to notice the signal that a blast was to be fired, he remained in the danger zone, with the result that a flying piece of rock struck him in the right eye. The eye became greatly swollen and on Tuesday last Mr. Vandy left for Philadelphia to enter the Will's Eye Hospital.

4th of July at Hecla.

Christy Smith's Orchestra has been engaged to play at the Park during the afternoon and evening. With the boating, New Merry-Go-Round, dancing &c. Hecla offers a cool, clean and altogether delightful place to spend the 4th. Trains leave Belletonte at 2.20 and 6.55 P. M. and excursion tickets will be on sale at the usual rates.

Former Bellefonte Boy Weds.

Harry Robb, of Pitcairn, and Miss Laura B. Jones, of Export, Pa., were married on Tuesday evening at 8.30 o'clock in the United Brethren parsonage by Rev. C. W. Winey. The groom is a son of Mrs. Elizabeth Robb, of East High Street, and is a very estimable young man.

Decorate on the Fourth.

The Daughters of the American Revolution respectfully urge the citizens of Bellefonte to decorate their homes and business places on the Fourth of July. It is hoped that the citizens will be liberal in the use of flags, bunting, etc.

ANOTHER NEW LEAGUE

May be Bellefonte, Philipsburg, Osceola and Huntingdon.

The proposition to have Bellefonte enter the Central Pennsylvania Basebal League has gone up in smoke. Lock Haven fizzled out. Without Lock Haven the plan was impossible. Still a little sore because Bellefonte withdrew from the league last year, Lock Haven refused to assume anything like a good humor for the present season. As will be recalled, Bellefonte withdrew last year rather than allow tin horn gamblers to run the league. As a result of its action Bellefonte this year has the support of the public while Lock Haven finds it difficult to arouse sentiment in the game.

A meeting will be held at Philipsburg or Osceola tonight or tomorrow night to figure on a new league. It is proposed that the towns to be included shall be Bellefonte, Philipsburg, Osceola and Huntingdon. It is hoped that the plan works out. Otherwise, Bellefonte probably will disband its team, it being the consensus of opinion that independent games will not pay. The rivalry attending league games is regarded as necessary to make baseball pay expenses.

Bellefonte already has a good team and would be ready in a few days time to take care of itself in the proposed league. On Saturday Bellefonte went to Huntingdon, where it met defeat, 8 2. With the exception of two innings Bellefonte played good ball. On Saturday next, Huntingdon plays a return game at Bellefonte. A close game is expected and a large crowd should be on hand.

On Tuesday Bellefonte played Renovo, at Bellefonte, winning, 9-0. Russell, for Bellefonte, pitched a star game, striking out 18 men and retiring the visitors without a hit. The game was interesting throughout and despite the one-sided score was replete with features which kept the enthusiasm at a high pitch. The score follows:

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local application, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed conditions mucous surfaces.

Water Superintendant Samuel Rire deserves a medal. In the last few days he has completely transformed the appearance of Spring Creek, between the water works and the Central Railroad of Pennsylvania station. The unsightly stones, mass of debris, etc., which greeted the eye of every stranger in town have been removed and now that it is done everybody is wondering why the improvement was delayed so long. Of course, one improvement suggests, or necessitates, another. Now that the creek bed has been cleaned of the stones and derbis that lined the sides, it appears that somebody has been dumping fish heads into the water. These are too heavy to float and remain in sight of all and a sorry advertisement to the town until they are swept along by the next flood. It is about time to draw the line on such practices.

JOHN KINLEY TENER'S INTERESTING CAREER

Life Story Of The Man Nominated By Republicans For Governor

IS FOND OF ATHLETICS

Received His Early Training in Public Schools—Worked His Way Up in the World—Prominent in Banking and Business Circles.

If the Tener boys were to appear together in any company of men anywhere they would have yielded to them the center of the stage by common consent, says the Pittsburg Gazette Times. If they were to organize the Tener troupe and take to the road they would make a hit singing "We are Seven." For they certainly are a notable family of big men, both physically and in the matter of achievement. Besides that, they number seven.

John Kinley Tener, who will be the next governor of Pennsylvania, is the fifth in line. The others are George E., Frank J., Robert W., Wallis J., Stephen W. and Edward H. All of them, save Robert and Stephen, belong to the great Pittsburg territory, and it was here that the family wrought its way to fortune and distinction. There are three sisters Mrs. James Smith, Mrs. William H. Johns and Mrs. Theodore Hopkins, the last named of Springfield, Mass.

The father was dead. He had been a gentleman farmer in the North of Ireland. Misfortune overtook him and then death claimed him. His wife, a woman of unusual strength of character as well as of intrepid determination, was left with a house full of children and little field in which to develop their careers and capacity. She turned her eyes and hopes toward the United States, where, in Western Pennsylvania, one branch of the Tener line has been settled since before the revolution. Here, if anywhere, she felt that her sons and daughters would attain that success in life which had thus far been denied the family. So they came over to America only to meet a crowning grief at the threshold and in the first hazard of new fortunes. Another little one was ushered into the world, and that was the last loving sacrifice of the brave mother of them all, for then death claimed her. Thus these boys had to face the world for themselves.

Happily, though in a strange country, they were of good stock and no mean order of ability, and there were those on this side who knew and welcomed them. The rest is written in the development of Western Pennsylvania, in its industrial and financial story, and in the lives of these Tener brothers. It spells success and good luck, with not a little of pioneering in certain lines and daring in others which is typical of the hardy sons of a hardy race.

John Kinley Tener, member of the Sixty-first Congress, from the twenty-fourth district of Pennsylvania, was born in the county of Tyrone, Ireland, July 25, 1864. His real life story begins with his arrival as a boy in Pittsburg. Here he attended the public and high schools.

After leaving school his first employment was with the firm of Oliver Bros. & Philips, in a clerical capacity. He afterward held positions of trust with the Chartiers Valley Glass Company and the Chambers & McKee Glass Company.

Having older brothers, it was not until he was about 17 that Mr. Tener set out to make his own living. His first work was in the weighing department of the South Side establishment mentioned, and here he became weighmaster. He never had either trade or profession of the ordinary kind—but he has been, in his day, a past master in the pitcher's box, somewhat of an expert accountant and a first rate company secretary. For financial work such as falls to banking he has a natural aptitude. He has few fads, if any, and his recreations are purely a side line. He does not go in much for fishing or hunting, and his traveling has been more incidental than systematic. Baseball took him around the world, and his position at the head of the Elks carried him all over the United States. This latter experience gave him something of a keen delight in travel, but he has been too busy to indulge this passion to anything approaching an occupation.

From early life Mr. Tener was always fond of athletics. His splendid physique gave him a particular advantage in this direction. Before his public school days were over he had attracted attention as a baseball player. His ability in that direction came to the notice of Capt. (Pop) Anson, who was at that time, and for some years afterward, the famous and successful manager of the Chicago club of the National League. He became a member of that team and immediately assumed first rank as a pitcher. In that capacity he accompanied the famous Spalding aggregation of baseball athletes in their tour around the world, in the fall of 1889-90. This was the most remarkable trip ever taken by a band of athletes, and resulted in the introduction of America's national game in many portions of the globe.

The old Sixth ward of Pittsburg may lay the flattering unction to its heart that it was within its precincts Mr. Tener acquired his education. Here, too, he imbibed his taste for baseball, and it was on the bluff overlooking the Monongahela river that he developed his first powers as a pitcher.

Wishing to enter a business career, Mr. Tener abandoned professional baseball and went about 20 years ago to Charleroi, Washington county, where he assumed the position of cashier of the First National Bank of that place. Charleroi is one of those remarkable towns in Western Pennsylvania which seems to have sprang up in a night, and is now one of the most substantial of the smaller municipalities in the state. Mr. Tener has been identified with its growth and has been prominent and active in every movement for the advancement of the community and the upbuilding of the town. The small bank which he entered as cashier has become one of the substantial institutions of that district. A few years after his service with it began, his associates, recognizing his ability as a financier, made him president of the institution, which position he still holds. Some years ago Mr. Tener was active in the organization of the Charleroi Savings and Trust Company, in which institution he became treasurer and active officer, and in which he is still interested.

Mr. Tener was instrumental and largely interested in the construction of street car lines in the vicinity of Charleroi, and is now the president of the new large steel bridge across the Monongahela river at that point and connecting Charleroi and Monessen. Mr. Tener is also largely interested in other financial and manufacturing establishments in Washington and surrounding counties.

One of the Teners was asked the other day what was John's most pronounced trait.

"Oh," said he, "that's easy; it's his good nature. He takes things cooly, doesn't become excited easily and manages to get away with what he undertakes without much fuss."

The Tener boys were circulating around the hotel lobbies at Harrisburg Tuesday night before the convention, and of course attracted a great deal of attention. It must have been a bit tiresome, as this or the other one was introduced to some stranger, to have the man start in with gushing comments on heroic size and good looks. But each one, in his quiet way, passed the compliment along to one of the others with a "But you ought to see John" or Frank, or Wallis, as the case might be. This is characteristic of the brotherhood. From George E. to Edward H. the Teners look after each other's welfare, and their loyalty to all and to those who have shown themselves friendly to them is proverbial in every circle in which they are known.

Mr. Tener is a man of affairs, occupying a prominent position in the business community, and belonging to that class of energetic and able young men who have made the Pittsburg district the manufacturing center of the nation and the marvel of the world. He is a self-made man; he has carved his own fortune; starting at the bottom. By his own efforts he has lifted himself to the position of distinction and responsibility which he now enjoys. Mr. Tener has always been a Republican. He has always been active in the support of his party. Although often solicited, he refused to permit the mention of his name for office until the year 1907, when he was persuaded to become a candidate for congress. In the campaign that followed his opponent was Ernest F. Acheson, who had been a member of Congress for 14 years. Putting all the strength of his personality into the contest, he won a notable victory. At the general election, his majority was over 10,000. Upon entering Congress Mr. Tener was signally honored by being appointed on the very important committee of Rivers and and Harbors, a distinction which very rarely comes to a member of that body during his first term. Other important committee assignments were given to him, and his career in Congress, as far as he has gone, has been marked by devotion to duty and successful ffort. On June 4 last he was nominated.

Notwithstanding all his varied and important business interests, Mr. Tener is a home man. Some 20 years ago he was married to Miss Harriet Day, of Haverhill, Mass. For many years they have resided in a handsome residence in Charleroi. His house is the center of social activities in the community.

Mr. Tener is a member of several organizations, among which is the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks. He was elected grand treasurer of this order at the second session of the grand lodge which he attended. So efficient was his administration of that trust, and so great was his popularity, that after three years as grand treasurer he was elected grand exalted ruler. He is a member of the Duquesne, the Pittsburg Athletic and other clubs.

Mr. Tener is about as democratic a man as you can find. He delights in the good fellowship of a quiet evening. Not given much to story telling, he is fond of that diversion and is an appreciative listener. He is rarely entertaining whenever some remark or incident is suggestive of his globe-trotting experience. His reminiscences of the famous game of ball at the foot of the pyramids and that other one when King Edward (then prince of Wales), was present, are cases in point; and by reason of this tour he is able to talk informingly of almost every habitable place of consequence on the globe.

JOHN M. REYNOLDS.

John Merriman Reynolds of Bedford, the choice of the Republican convention for lieutenant governor, to which office he will be elected next November, was born in Lancaster, Pa., and has been one of the active men in Pennsylvania affairs as well as prominent in national works. He was graduated from the Millersville Sate Normal School in 1867, received the degree A. M. from Columbia University, studied law and was admitted to the bar in Bedford county in 1870, and later was admitted to practice in the Supreme Courts of Pennsylvania and of the United Sates. He is engaged in the practice of law and is associated with the Colonial Iron Company of Riddlesburg, Pa.

Mr. Reynolds one was of the thousands of Democrats who could not endure the free silver principles fostered by William J. Bryan, and in 1896 he left the party he had so long graced, became an active Republican and supported McKinley for President. In 1900 his county presented him as its candidate for Congress from the Twentieth district, composed of Bedford, Blair, Cambria and Somerset countries, but he declined in favor of Alvin Evans who was elected. In 1904 Mr. Reynolds was elected in the new Nineeenth district, composed of Bedford, Cambria and Blair counties. In 1906 and 1908 he was re-elected, but this year he was not a candidate for renomination. During his three terms in Congress he has made a distinguished record.

HENRY HOUCK.

Henry Houck, renominated by the Republican party for Secretary of Internal Affairs, was born in Palmyra, Lebanon county, Pa., March 6, 1836, and was educated in the public and private schools. In 1852, when 16 years of age, he began teaching school. Four years later he was elected principal of the school in North Lebanon borough, and while filling this position, he was preparing for college. He was appointed superintendent of schools of Labanon county in 1859, and was thrice re-elected. In 1867 he accepted a position in the Department of Public Instruction, and in 1869 was promoted to the office of Deputy State Superintendent, which position he filled for 38 years. He was twice chairman of the executive committee of the State Teachers' Association, and in 1872 presided at its annual meetings in Philadelphia. He has conducted institutes in many states and has lectured in nearly every city and town in Pennsylvania. In 1903 he made a tour of Porto Rico to inquire into the educational features of that United States possession. He has been honored with the degree of Lit. D. and A. M. by Pennsylvania College and Franklin and Marshall College, respectively. He was elected Secretary of Internal Affairs on November 6, 1906, made a creditable record in the office, and will be re-elected next November.

CHARLES F. WRIGHT.

Charles F. Wright, the Republican nominee for state treasurer, was born in Forest Lake township, Susquehanna county, and was educated in private and public schools and the Montrose Academy. He entered the First National Bank of Montrose immediately after leaving school and remained with that institution until he was offered the cashiership of the First National Bank of Susquehanna, which position he still holds. Mr. Wright is extensively interested in farming and in manufacturing and chemical plants in Susquehanna, Wayne and adjoining counties. He represented his district in the Fifty-sixth, Fifty-seventh and Fifty-eigth Congresses, which had been represented by his brother, Myron D. Wright. Mr. Wright was named by Gov. Stuart as treasurer to fill the vacancy caused by the death of ex-Senator J. A. Stober of Lancaster, who died before he could qualify. He is a member of the Episcopal church.

Senator Oliver's Tribute

United States Senator George T. Oliver pays this tribute to the several nominees of the Republican State Convention, held last week at Harrisburg:

"The ticket is a strong one and it will grow stronger each day from now until November. In nominating two members of the present Congress for the leading places Pennsylvania has emphasized her indorsement not only of the tariff bill, which is the safegaurd of our industries, but of all the other measures championed by the President, every one of which received the united support of these two men and their 25 Republican colleagues.

"The story of Mr. Tener's early struggles and his final success is an inspiration to the young and a demonstration of the fact that the opportunites in this country for advancement against great odds are as open and as numerous as ever in our history.

"I think that this is an opportune time to set at rest a story which has been frequently published, that Mr. Tener and I are related. If this story were true, it seems to me that there would be nothing in it for either of us to be ashamed of. For my part I would be proud of such a connection, but there is absolutely no truth in it whatever. Mr. Tener and I have always been friends and our parents were close and inimate friends before either of us were born, but there is no relationship whatever between us."

VALUE OF WATER IN BUTTER

There must be a certain amount of water in butter to make it a perfect article—not that the per cent of water must come within certain fixed or narrow limits, but the amount that is present in butter made under normal conditions where quality is the main object.

To the average consumer the water content is not greatly noticeable unless there is a small quantity of free water left in the package in which the butter was originally packed. However, this free water bears no direct relation to the amount present in butter, but it is an indication of the plan followed in its manufacture.

Butter mechanically perfect may contain between 10 and 15 per cent of water. As a rule, this extreme difference cannot be detected except by men who have made the subject a study.

The value of butter is based on its quality and general makeup and not its natural composition, except in cases where it has been carried to an extreme.

The factors in composition that will affect its quality are the extremes in salt contents or whether the salt is all dissolved.

The limit which was placed upon the water to be incorporated into butter was in part to do away with the growing tendency on the part of some to make an article that should contain the lowest possible amount of butter fat and yet bear the name of butter. If this had not been checked there would have been danger of placing the ability of the buttermaker upon the question, "Can you get us the overrun?" in place of, "Can you make good butter?" It seems as if that idea is still encouraged in certain localities.

The overrun bears a certain relation to the composition of the butter, but is not a sure indication that a high per cent of water means a correspondingly high overrun.

A buttermaker should have an overrun that checks fairly well with the fat in his butter, provided the loss of fat in the process of manufacture has been kept at its minimum. It cannot always be said that an overrun of only 10 per cent is an indication of butter having a high fat content any more than a high overrun indicates low fat content butter.

The greatest factor in overrun control is the accurate determination of the total butter fat delivered to the creamery. If more butter fat was delivered than was actually paid for it cannot help but increase the overrun and vice versa.

Naturally the question arises, "Can butter be made to always contain less than the legal 16 per cent limit for water?" The answer is positively "Yes," with a fair margin for safety. In fact, butter can be made to not exceed even a 15 per cent limit. A good commercial product can contain 14 to 15 per cent of water. This, added to the 82.5 per cent standard for fat, makes a total of 96.5 to 97.5 per cent, leaving a balance of 2.5 to 3.5 per cent for salt casein and ash.

Since the average casein and ash content need not exceed 1 per cent, this leaves 1.5 to 2.5 per cent for salt. This amount of salt is not sufficient for all grades of butter, nor will it meet the demand of all consumers. In order to increase the salt content there must be a decrease in the water. A commercial product will pass to certain consumers containing 3.5 per cent salt, but need not exceed 3 per cent.

It is not safe to work too close to any standard because of variation in composition due to sampling. One sample of butter taken to represent a churning may or may not be an accurate representation of the butter in question. An average variation of at least one-half per cent must be allowed with an extreme of at least 1 per cent.

Testing Cream.

The percentage of fat in milk will have some effect upon the percentage of fat in the cream delivered by the separator. For example, when whey containing 1 to 2 per cent of fat is separated, unless the cream screw is changed, it will deliver a cream, if it may be called such, that will have to pass through the separator again before it can be churned, but just how much two creams will vary in test, one made from 5 per cent milk and the other from 4 per cent milk without changing the cream screw, we are unable to say, and we can find no data that will help us to answer this question exactly. It would be a very easy matter to determine just how much the two creams would vary in test by running some 4 and 5 per cent milk through a separator under the same conditions, then testing the two resulting creams.

Rations For Colts.

An experienced horseman has found equal parts of corn and oats ground together to be one of the best grain rations for growing colts. It furnishes elements needed for the production of fat, bone and muscle. Adding bran or linseed meal to the ration aids very much in keeping the bowels regular and avoids constipation and in this way lessens the liability of disease.

Cooling the Cream.

To cool the cream quickly and thoroughly just as soon as the separating is finished is of more importance than anything else at that particular time. The pigs and calves can wait for their skimmilk, but bacteria in the cream wait for nothing until the temperature favorable to their growth is reduced.

PROHIBITIONISTS NAME LARKIN FOR GOVERNOR

Harrisburg Convention Selected Straight Party Ticket.

NO USE FOR GRUMBLERS

Refuse to Allow the Prohibitionist Party to be Used by Men who Failed to Dictate Republican and Democratic Nominations.

Pennsylvania Prohibitionists, at their State convention, at Harrisburg, on Friday, last, refused to pull the chestnuts from out of the fire for grumblers from other parties and nominated a straight Prohibition ticket. Madison F. Larkin, of Scranton, was nominated for Governor, receiving 92 votes, to 33 votes for H. T. Ames, of Williamsport and 16 votes for D. Clarence Gibboney, of Philadelphia.

Efforts to swing the convention for William H. Berry for the nomination for Governor resulted in complete failure, while the attempt to throw the nomination to Mr. Gibboney met with failure, equally ludicrous. It was the pronounced sentiment of the Prohibitionists that their party column was desired by kickers from other parties and for selfish purposes, only, and that for the sake of the good name of the Prohibition party the nomination of a straight party ticket was essential. Mr. Larkin proved himself the only consistent Prohibitionist among the several aspirants for the nomination for Governor. In unequivocal terms he declared that he was a Prohibitionist every day in the year.

It is understood that the friends of Berry and Gibboney now will endeavor to have Mr. Larkin withdraw in order that a combination ticket may be nominated to enable Republican and Democratic grumblers to wage a three cornered campaign. Friends of Mr. Larkin frankly say that he cannot withdraw without sacrificing honor and principle and that he has a much higher regard for honor and principle than is possessed by those who tried to manipulate the Prohibition convention.

The complete ticket nominated follows:

Madison F. Larkin, Scranton, for Governor.

C. R. McConkey, Grove City, for Lieutenant Governor.

C. W. Huntingdon, Williamsport, Secretary of Internal Affairs.

I. W. Huckins, Philadelphia, for State Treasurer.

METHODIST DAY

Lakemont Park the Place; Thursday, July 28, the Date.

The annual Methodist Day will be held at Lakemont park, Thursday, July 28. The program is rapidly making. Bishop Lewis, who has just returned from China and succeeded last week in impressing monied men of New York city and other centers to finance a great university at Foochow, China, will speak in the afternoon. This will be a great treat, for Bishop Lewis has been in the very center of some of the mightiest achievements in education, relief and for Christianity of this century.

Dr. Moore, of Brooklyn, will preach in the morning. Noted orator.

The preparations for the day in the line of music are upon a scale that will make it attractive, and by parties that insure a fine schedule.

It is very gratifying to the general committee that the Pennsylvania Railroad company will run a special train from Grampian, starting at 6:30 a.m., arriving in Altoona at 9:27; return by regular trains. From this point and throughout the main Tyrone division, and on the main line from Harrisburg to Greensburg, excursion tickets (at two cents a mile), will be sold July 27 and 28 good to return until July 30, inclusive. This will bring a great crowd. Excursion rates have not been given for eight years. This arrangement meets the wishes of a host of people at distant points.—Altoona Tribune.

HAND FEEDING THE COLT.

May Be Raised on Milk if Done Patiently and Intelligently.

When a mare dies or has no milk for her foal it may be raised on cow's milk if the attendant conducts the work patiently and intelligently. The milk of a cow that has recently calved should be chosen, preferably of one which gives milk low in butter fat, for mare's milk, while rich in sugar, is poor in fat. The milk should be sweetened with molasses or sugar and diluted with warm water.

A little of this prepared milk should be given at short intervals from a scalded nursing bottle and large rubber nipple. Care should be taken to keep the bottle and nipple scrupulously clean. An ounce of limewater should be added to each pint of the prepared milk and half a cupful allowed once an hour at first.

As the foal grows the feeder should gradually increase the amount of milk fed and lengthen the intervals between meals. In a few days food may be given six times a day and later four times daily. The foal will soon learn to drink from a pail if allowed to suck the attendant's fingers at first.

Until the bowels move freely rectal injections should be given night and morning. If the foal scours at any time two to four tablespoonfuls of a mixture of sweet oil and pure castor oil shaken up in milk should be given and feeding of milk stopped for two or three meals, allowing sweetened warm water and limewater instead. The foal may lick oatmeal as soon as it will eat, and gradually the amount may be increased and wheat bran added.

In five or six weeks some sweet skimmilk may be given and the amount gradually increased daily until, in three months or so, it may be given freely three times a day in place of new milk. The foal at this age also will be eating freely of grass, grains and bran. At all times pure cold drinking water should be supplied.

ABOUT THE COLLIE.

A Good Strong Eye an Important Point In This Dog.

I notice in several papers breeders of Scotch collies advertising collies for sale as "natural heelers," says an expert on collie dogs. Now, that is entirely against the nature of a collie dog, to go to the heel. Any mongrel will run and fetch a hog by the hind end, but a good collie must get to the front.

I shall try to give an idea of how to start training a dog. The trainer must have great patience. I always let the pup start following me to the pasture when about four months old. Let him go out among the sheep every day without attempting to let him work. He will watch the old dog, and one day when a sheep runs he will make a move to stop it; then only is the time to make a start.

When wanted to go around some sheep get the sheep close to you to allow the dog to go clear around them. The first time call the dog up to your heel. Always start the dog from behind and teach it to stop when at the other side of the sheep. If the dog does right call him to you, pat him on the head and let him understand it is right. If, however, he tries to break in among the sheep call loudly to him, but do not whip him. One or two lessons the first day will be sufficient. Each day increase the lessons.

A dog should be taught to keep out wide from the sheep. A dog that runs too close is not considered a good dog. One of the best points a dog can have is a good strong eye. By that I mean one that will stand and set like a setter, never taking his eye from the sheep. A dog that runs when told and has no eye never makes sure. That is a most important point in a collie dog. Again I say a good strong eye and you need not fear.

When the Cows Are Nervous.

It is almost impossible to suggest a cure for some nervous habits in cows. Possibly the teats are sore and tender. If so, rubbing them with sweet oil after each milking might help. Give the cow some favorite food at milking time to distract her attention from the milking act.

Use System In Watering Horses.

Painstaking and experienced horsemen have proved beyond a doubt that horses seem to be better nourished when systematically watered before feeding and again two or three hours after.

Sheep Have Few Ailments.

Some farmers say they do not keep sheep because they are subject to disease, which is a great mistake, because properly cared for sheep have fewer ailments than any other farm animal.

Got Another Copy.

A well dressed man was standing outside a bookseller's shop in Charing Cross road closely examining one of Balzac's works illustrated by Gustave Dore. "How much is this Balzac?" he asked an assistant outside.

"Twenty-five shillings," was the reply.

"Oh, that's far too much. I must see the manager about a reduction," continued the prospective customer, and, suiting the action to the word, he took up the book and went into the shop.

Approaching the bookseller, he took the book from under his arm and asked what he would give for it. "Seven shillings highest offer," he was told.

The offer was accepted, the man took his money and left.

"Well," queried the assistant later, after the man had gone, "were you able to hit it off with the gentleman, sir?"

"Oh, yes. I managed to get another copy of that edition of Balzac for 7 shillings."

Then the bookseller went out to lodge a complaint with the police.—London Telegraph.

A Victim of Leprosy.

"On my travels in Venezuela," said a New York man, "I stayed in a hotel with a young man in whose family there was the taint of leprosy, though he apparently did not have it. One night sitting at dinner he became angry at a waiter and brought his hand down on the table with full force. He instantly realized that he did not feel the blow and sat looking at his hand, his face whitening with horror. 'Give me your knife, Bob,' he said to his chum. He grabbed the pocketknife in a frenzy and stabbed the side of his hand with vicious cuts from finger tip to wrist. You may not know that leprosy appears in the side of the hand, numbness being a sign. The man did not feel the cuts. He arose from the table, knocking over his chair, rushed out into the courtyard of the hotel, and we heard the quick tang of a revolver shot, telling us how he had conquered the leper's curse by ending his life."—New York Times.

He Could Wield an Ax.

The skill of the old Maine shipbuilders in the use of the adz and broadax was wonderful. One old time yarn is of a carpenter who applied very drunk at a shipyard for employment. In order to have a little fun with him the foreman set him to give a proof of his skill by hewing out a wooden bolt with no chopping block but a stone. The carpenter accomplished his difficult task without marring the keen edge of the broadax and showed the foreman a neatly made bolt. Then he brought the ax down with a terrific blow that shattered its edge upon the stone. "I can hew fust rate on your chopping block," he hiccoughed, "but I'll be blamed if I can make the ax stick in it when I git through." The story runs that the foreman lost no time in employing such a workman.

Judges' Wigs.

The wig is only worn by English barristers to give them a stern, judicial appearance, and no one can say that it fails in this respect. The custom was originated by a French judge in the seventeenth century when, happening to don a marquis' wig one day, he found it gave him such a stern and dignified appearance that he decided to get one for himself and wear it at all times in court. This he did, and the result was so satisfactory from a legal point of view that not only judges, but barristers also, took up the custom throughout Europe.—London Graphic.

RECIPES.

Nut Rice Pudding.—One pint boiled rice, one-half cupful of chopped walnuts, three tablespoonfuls of vegetable oil, one-half teaspoonful of salt, one-half teaspoonful of sage, one egg (beaten) and zwiebach crumbs. Mix the ingredients, using sufficient crumbs to make the mixture stiff enough to form into patties. If the rice is very dry it may be necessary to add a little milk to make the mixture sufficiently soft. It is better to do this and use some crumbs than to omit the milk and the crumbs. Egg and crumb the patties and bake fifteen to twenty minutes in a hot oven.

Brown Gravy.—One-half cupful of flour, one-quarter cupful of vegetable oil, boiling water and salt. Cook the flour in the oil, stirring to prevent scorching till the flour is lightly browned, and sufficient boiling water, stirring vigorously with a batter whip to make of the proper consistency for gravy. Cook five minutes. Salt to taste.

Jellied Chicken.

For jellied chicken have on hand three pounds of chicken that has been boiled and cut from the bone in strips. Mix a quart of rich chicken stock that has been boiled down and cleared with a teaspoonful each of lemon juice, chopped parsley, a dash of celery salt and a quarter teaspoonful each of salt and paprika. At the last stir in a teaspoonful of granulated gelatin that has been dissolved. When the jelly begins to thicken add the chicken and turn it into a mold. To have the chicken scattered evenly through the jelly stand the dish containing the jelly in a pan of ice and turn in the jelly layer by layer, covering each with chicken as soon as it begins to thicken.

Creamed Onions on Toast.

Peel some Spanish onions all of a size. Put into a white lined pan covered with water or stock. Add a small blade of mace and cook gently till tender. Drain and keep the onions hot; then add a gill of milk to the onion liquid. Measure this liquid all together and to every gill add a heaped teaspoonful of flour moistened with a little cold milk. Boil up. Add a nut of butter, salt and pepper. Make a square of buttered toast for each onion. Add the yolk of an egg to the sauce, lay an onion on each square of toast, pour some sauce over each, then a little chopped parsley and serve hot.

When Purchasing Veal.

Veal should be fat, the kidney small and well covered with firm white fat, the lean finely grained and of a clear white color. Inferior veal is lean. The flesh is clammy and has a spotty appearance.

The color is either red or a dull sickly white. Fresh veal has a clean, healthy smell, and the vein in the shoulder is blue or red. Veal does not keep well in hot weather owing to its large proportion of gelatin.

Uses For Parsley.

Often parsley is thrown away instead of being dried in the oven and rubbed to powder and put away in a bottle for seasoning soups, stews and gravies. Even the stems may be saved and used in this manner. Parsley will make the most delicious seasoning. Generally it is only known as a garnish.

Nut Hash.

Chop fine cold boiled potatoes and any other vegetables desired that happen to be on hand. Put them into a buttered frying pan and heat quickly and thoroughly. Salt to taste. Then just before serving stir in lightly a large spoonful of nut meal for each person to be served.

Lambert, of Pitcairn, now visiting in Bellefonte, this week enrolled himself as a subscriber to "The Republican." It must not be inferred from this that John isn't good looking or that he isn't good natured, for he is both, and furthermore he demonstrated that he knows a good newspaper when he sees one.

Sergeant Lemuel R. Poorman, of Company L, Twelfth regiment, N. G. P., departed on Monday for Huntingdon, where he has accepted the position of drill master in the Huntingdon Reformatory. Mr. Poorman has had a great deal of experience in military work and will surely fill the bill. It is at this school that Richard Taylor, also of Bellefonte, has charge of all the military work.

Those Gramley brothers from Rebersburg, C. L. and C. H., were Bellefonte visitors yesterday and, of course, were callers at "The Republican" office. They were enroute to Snow Shoe to attend the Sunday School convention, but found time to look up friends for a little chat. It is a matter of sincere regret among the numerous friends of Professor Gramley that he withdrew as a candidate for the Legislature, all the signs of the times indicating that one-half of the Democrats are so disgusted with their party that they won't go to the polls in Novem ber and that he would have been elected, hands down.

One of the most genial callers at "The Republican" office in a long time was W. H. Twigg, of Philipsburg, who stopped in for a few minutes on Monday afternoon. He was accompanied by Miss Lillian Ethel Jinks, a very charming young lady and who was, if anything even jollier. Mr. Twigg and Miss Jinks were spending the afternoon in Bellefonte and were being shown about town by County Commissioner Dunlap. Mr. Twigg is the assessor of Rush township, but that is a small part of his business, for he is an expert baker and as such his services are constantly in demand in the pretty town across the mountains. Even if he was in the hands of Commissioner Dunlap, Mr. Twigg is a good Republican. While we didn't say so, we were tempted to remark that one good way to keep a man firm in his Republican faith is to turn him loose with one or more Democrats.

His little face beaming with joy and trying as he best knew how to tell how glad he was to be home again, Paul Irvin Miller, the six-years-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert F. Miller returned to Bellefonte last week after his first year at the Pennsylvania Institution for the Deaf and Dumb, at Mt. Airy, Philadelphia. Mr. Miller met his son on the train at Spring Mills and accompanied him home. The child shows some improvement after his first year under the care of professional teachers and it is hoped that he will eventually learn to talk. Paul will spend the summer with his parents and return to Mt. Airy in September. Two other Centre County children are students at Mt. Airy and arrived home on the same train with Paul Miller. One was Stella Hagen, of Howard, who is 14 years old and who has been at Mt. Airy for the last seven years. The other is Edith Boozer, of Centre Hall, who now is 19 years old and who has been a studeut at Mt. Airy since she was 5 years old. They also will return to Mt. Airy in September.

William Tibbens, who is well along in years and who resides up Buffalo Run, near Roopsburg, suffered a stroke of paralysis on Monday. His condition is such as to occasion alarm among his numerous friends.

Jacob Mackert and family, of Sunbury, have just moved to Bellefonte. Mr. Mackert will take up the position of Mr. Clyde Smith as wire-chief on the Commercial Telephone lines, Mr. Smith having been appointed manager of the Indiana exchange.

These hot days make the ice cream cone especially attractive. Harry F. Alters, of Bellefonte, successor to T. Clayton Brown, bakes the famous Parisian Ice Cream Cones. You can get fresh, crisp cones at any time; wholesale or retail.

A firm friend and regular reader of "The Republican" is Lanning Irvin, of Runville, who honored us with a little call yesterday. Sparkling with good humor and looking at the brighter side of life, Mr. Irvin has the happy faculty of making others feel good. It is needless to say that Mr. Irvin advanced the date on the label on his paper, for that is what every true friend of "The Republican" is doing. It is also needless to say that we deeply appreciate such frienidship.

Miss Jennie Irvin entertained at cards on Tuesday evening.
